

Introducing Cavendish Aviation

Cavendish Aviation and my team of maintenance engineers are delighted to be located at Earls Colne Airfield as we believe it's one of the best facilities in Essex with an asphalt strip and lights that allows for flying all year round.

This means that club members want their aircraft to be available 12 months a year and Cavendish Aviation is here to help you achieve that with a dedicated and highly qualified maintenance team (that has featured in national press like Pilot and Flyer Magazine) on your doorstep here at the airfield.

I've been a pilot for four decades and was taught by the airfield's very own Eddy Ford in the Seventies so have years of experience when it comes to aircraft ownership and know all about the dedication and commitment required to keep flying.

Cavendish Aviation was created to ensure that you get a first class and trustworthy maintenance service that puts your aircraft in expert hands at a reasonable price, allowing you to focus on hitting the skies and enjoying the great coastal views that flying across East Anglia brings.

Last year saw major changes introduced by the CAA with the introduction of the Self-Declared Maintenance Programme for aircraft owners. The good news is that Cavendish Aviation is also an approved CAA maintenance organisation (UK MF 0094) which means working closely with owners on keeping aircraft in tip top condition and ready to fly on a regular basis.

We're happy to be a part of the Earls Colne Airfield community and operate an open door policy so if you fancy coming over to look inside the hangar or would like a chat over a cup of tea about maintenance or our other projects such as Alpi Aviation light aircraft and our nano crystal surface technology, Aerocoat, then we'll be more than happy to see you.
